An adventure across the top of the world!

Welcome to Nunavut, birthplace of the Kayak!

The kayak was developed over 4,000 years ago by our Inuit ancestors who constructed it with animal skins stretched over frames of bone or wood. Canoes are an even older technology, first made from hollowed out tree trunks found on the beach.

Nunavut's many rivers and lakes thaw in the late springtime and most of its 45,000 kilometers of arctic coastline, with spectacular bays and river entrances, become usable and boat-friendly when the sea ice breaks up by July.

Canoeing

Ranging from easy to expert level, Nunavut has some of the most beautiful waters for canoeing in the entire world — including the Coppermine River and the Back River, plus the countless waterfalls of Katannilik Territorial Park in the Qikiqtaaluk region.

Guided by local experts, with added safety in groups, paddling adventures of up to 200 kilometers lead you through pristine arctic lands of the Thelon Wildlife Sanctuary which is home to the magnificent musk oxen as well as polar bears, other birds and animals. Canoeing is an ideal way to experience its majestic landscape and wildlife.

The Inuktitut word for whitecaps is 'qagaaqtuq' and 'uqsuaqtuq' means smooth, calm seas.

Kayaking

Nunavut is a world-class destination for expert sea kayaking. For those who enjoy kayaking, the venues are endless. With an experienced guide, from communities such as Igloolik, Kimmirut, Resolute and Sanikiluaq, you can explore rocky shorelines and fiords, view walrus and other marine mammals, touch an iceberg and take fantastic while crossing arctic waters as the Inuit have done for thousands of years. Guides will safely take you to the iceberg edges in the late spring and early summer.
